

I like maths because it feels like playing with numbers but then you are learning

I love maths because there's always more you could be learning.

As the topic carry on they get harder and harder. Sometimes the challenges make me really think.

I love when we do things like number day. It was fun but when I looked back I had done loads of maths.

On our tables we have these things called maths boxes and we use them to show how we know or to help us work out an answer.

We use purple pens to correct so our teacher can see that we now understand.

Sometimes we work with partners. We can explain things and work together.

We use our growth mindset in maths!

I love maths because it's challenging and fun. You learn new things and at first it's hard but then it get's easier.

I like the workbooks because they push us to our absolute limits.

You have to be resilient and really use everything you have been taught.

My favourite thing in maths is making mistakes. If you make a mistake it helps you to learn.
